At lunch, it picks some fish and bread with some blueberries. The app also says fruits make me quick. After school, I jump rope in the yard—it's fun, and I'm very fast!
 Noah	I want to be strong, so I eat healthy food with my parents' love. In the morning, they make eggs with cheese for my breakfast. They make chicken and carrots for my lunch—I can feel the love from them! After school, I ride my bike around the park. It's cool. I don't drink Cola much—Mom and Dad give me water. Their love and the healthy food help me stay fit!
 Zara	I love jogging, so my teacher says some food may help me exercise. She told me to have some beef with butter and an apple for breakfast—they're healthy and tasty. At lunch, she says rice, fish and vegetables are good for me. After school, I jog around the playground. My teacher's advice keeps me jogging happily!
 Sam	I want to be an excellent football player, so I follow my friend's advice. My friend Max tells me to eat a bowl of yogurt with honey and corn for breakfast—it's warm and gives me power. How much exercise do children need to keep in good health? Every parent wants to know the answer. In the US, many people think that children should exercise half an hour each day. It is the same in the UK.

A new study shows that children should exercise for their muscles(肌肉) and bones(骨头) more than three times a week. Children can do activities like climbing and playing on monkey bars—this kind of exercise is good for their muscles. Jumping and running are good for their bones. Children should also do aerobic(有氧的) exercise for more than 60 minutes every day. They can walk fast or go running.

However, many children don't like doing exercise or playing sports outside. Today, many children like playing computer games or watching TV at home every day. What can parents do to help the children do sports outside?

Doctor Stephanie Walsh says she often sees parents taking long walks with their children as a kind of exercise, but that might not be the best way. "Although walking is a great activity, it's really boring for children. So if you're going to ask your children to go for a walk, think of some fun things to do along the way," she says. __▲__ It's a good idea to take them outside and let them play with their friends. If they often play together, it will become an important and interesting part of their life. Little by little, they will love exercise or sports.

26. What does Doctor Stephanie Walsh advise parents to do?
A. Take their children to have a walk.
B. Let their children play with friends outside.
C. Make their children sit in front of TV.
D. Have their children stay in the house all day.

A long time ago, people and animals started living together. Cats helped keep mice away from homes, and dogs kept people safe. In return, we gave them food and a place to stay. It was a great deal for everyone! These animals are pets. They are happy with simple things, like a toy or a walk. Pets show us how to be kind and enjoy life.

Having a pet can make us feel good! People with pets often have healthier hearts and feel less stressed(有压力的). When you pet a dog or cat, your brain makes you feel calm and happy. Even watching a fish swim can help you relax. Some pets, like dogs and cats, can be trained to notice when something is wrong with us. They can tell if we're sick or need help. Pets also help people move more-like walking a dog or playing with a cat. This keeps our bodies strong.

Pets are good for our minds too. People with pets often feel less lonely and more confident. Taking care of a pet gives us something fun to do. Walking a dog can even show us how exciting the world is—just watch them sniff(嗅) everything! After a day of work, coming home to a pet’s wagging tail(摇尾巴) can cheer us up fast. Studies show that pets help us feel less stressed(焦虑的), especially when we’re with them alone.

If you want a pet, you can visit a shelter or help a friend take care of theirs. Pets need us to feed them, play with them, and love them for a long time. It's a big job, but the love they give back makes it worth it. Pets love us just the way we are. They trust us and make our lives brighter.

27. What can we learn from Paragraph 1?
- A. Pets keep us safe. B. Pets help us catch mice.
- C. Pets give us food. D. Pets are our special friends.
28. What does the underlined phrase “cheer us up” probably mean in Paragraph 3?
- A. Keep us healthy. B. Help us move. C. Make us happy. D. Get us stressed.
29. What do you have to do if you want a pet?
- A. Care for them for a long time. B. Visit your friends to play with them.
- C. Walk them when you are free. D. Play with and feed them just for fun.
30. What’s the best title for the text?
- A. How Pets Make Our Lives Better B. You’d better Keep Pets for Fun
- C. Walk Your Dogs if Necessary D. Help the Homeless Cats and Dogs
