Josie and Ling planned to sleep in a tent in Josie's backyard. Josie said, "I'm so happy that we get to sleep in the tent. There will be lots of fun." Then Ling said, "I brought flashlights(手电) so we can play games in the tent."

Josie's dad went inside the tent and said, "Girls, it is a good time to look at the nighttime sky."

They both replied, "Do we have to, now? We want to play inside the tent."

"The sky at night is beautiful. Come on! I have already set up the telescope(望远镜) in the yard."

"See the stars in the sky? Those bright light points can form shapes. You can see the Big Dipper. It's a group of stars that look like a huge spoon in the sky." Josie's dad said.

"Wow, that's amazing!" Josie said.

It was Ling's turn to look. Ling cried out, "I see a bright light moving in the sky!"

"That's a shooting star!" said Josie's dad.

"This is fun." said Ling. "I really enjoy looking at the stars."

"I think we've seen enough of the night sky." said Josie's dad. "You two can go back to play in the tent."

"Aw, Dad, can't we keep looking?" asked Josie. "This is really fun."

"This will surely be an exciting night!" Josie shouted.

As long as you're careful enough, you'll certainly find the beauty of nature.

C

Just like a hungry brain craves(渴望) food, a lonely brain craves people. A new brain study proves(证明) this. And it also shows people's brains become active as soon as people are left alone.

While scientists know loneliness has something to do with depression(抑郁) in some way, it's hard to tell the real relationship between them. "One way to know their relation is to look at how the brain responds(作出反应) to the time of being alone." says Livia Tomoya, a scientist.

She and her team workers got 40 volunteers. On the first day, the volunteers didn't eat anything for 10 hours. On another day, they were placed in a room alone for 10 hours—no friends, no family and no social media. At the end of each day, they showed high activity in a brain area called the midbrain. The researchers were interested in two small areas in it. Both areas became active when hungry volunteers saw pictures of pizza or hamburgers. After the volunteers had been left alone, those brain areas became active when they saw some lost social activities.

The midbrain plays an important part in people's motivation(动机) for looking for food or friends. In fact, it responds to food and social signals even when people aren't hungry or lonely. But hunger and loneliness increase the responses.

One of the goals of studying people is to find out what our basic needs are. Nguyen studies the situation of being alone at Durham University. Humans are social animals, Nguyen notes. This new study, she says, shows social time is a basic need.

23. What does the underlined word “it” refer to?
  - A. The new brain study.
  - B. The lonely brain.
  - C. The hungry brain.
  - D. Being left alone.
24. How did Livia Tomoya study the relationship between loneliness and depression?
  - A. By doing research on different feelings people have.
  - B. By watching how brains respond to the time of being alone.
  - C. By writing down volunteers’ life without social media.
  - D. By comparing the volunteers’ ways of dealing with loneliness.
25. What does the third paragraph mainly talk about?
  - A. Why people need friends and family members around.
  - B. How the brain study was done and the results of it.
  - C. Which part of the brain has something to do with feelings.
  - D. What happened if volunteers were both hungry and lonely.
26. What is Nguyen’s opinion?
  - A. People wish to be alone.
  - B. Studying people is hard.
  - C. Humans are social animals.
  - D. Food is part of humans’ basic needs.

D

During the cold winter, we usually fall ill and catch a cold or cough. There are some common and great ways that you can follow to keep yourself away from these problems.

Never leave your house without warm clothes. It might be sunny in the morning or daytime but it starts getting colder as the sun sets. So make sure you have a sweater or a coat for the colder night.

Don't walk without shoes in your house. We have a habit of staying bare foot at home. It's bad for us. The cold passes from foot to head right away and that is why we need to wear shoes to stay away from the cold.

Drinking ginger tea(姜茶) helps your body get warm during the colder days. Green tea is also good for health. Taking one cup of green tea keeps your body healthy and solves many health problems. Green tea is even good for those who want to get thinner.

It's better to take quick action through exercise to beat the cold. Still if you catch a cold, do not let the cold build up in your body. Do some warm-up exercise in the morning or rub(摩擦) your hands quickly. Jogging or yoga also helps your body to become warm to stay away from cold and fever.

Follow these simple ways and you'll enjoy the winter with a relaxing feeling.

27. What does "a man stays bare foot" mean?

- A. He makes his feet dirty.
- B. He keeps his feet warm.
- C. He doesn't wear shoes.
- D. He wears a pair of warm shoes.

28. According to the passage, how can we stay away from the cold in winter?

- A. By eating well.
- B. By wearing nice clothes.
- C. By doing exercise.
- D. By walking outside often.

29. Which of the following can show the structure(结构) of the passage?

- A. ①|②③④⑤|⑥
- B. ①|②③|④⑤|⑥
- C. ①|②③④|⑤⑥
- D. ①②|③④|⑤⑥

30. What is the passage mainly about?

- A. How to have a good eating habit.
- B. How to stay healthy in the cold winter.
- C. What to do to stay away from the fever.
- D. When and where to keep warm in the cold.

第二节（共 5 小题，每小题 2 分，满分 10 分）

通读小文章，请从以下选项（A-E）中，选出符合文意的小标题（其中一项是多余选项）。将其序号填入前四题，并回答最后一题（请注意小题后的词数要求）。

Do you want to know how to succeed in a new school term? Here are several tips for you from some teachers.

__31__ Write down special tasks(任务) and activities on a calendar. This helps you remember things you need to do. You can also make a chart. Then, use colourful pens to circle or draw a line under your homework, reading tasks or other activities. By using a chart, you learn to plan for your studies.

__32__ Visit the bookstore or library every few weeks to find a new book to read. The more you get excited about reading, the more confident you will become.

__33__ Put your notebooks in different folders(文件夹) according to the subject. This helps you keep papers and notes organized(有条理的).

__34__ You're never too old to ask for help. You can turn to your teachers when there is a question about homework, or relationships with other people. They are there to listen to and help you.

- A. Use a calendar or chart.
- B. Books are great friends.
- C. Ask for help if necessary.
- D. Make friends and try to solve problems together.
- E. Buy folders in different colours.

35. Do you want to succeed in a new school term? Tell us one way to help you to be successful.
