A

Do you have good friends? What kind of friends do you like to make? Some students are sharing their opinions with us.

 Tom	Although we are quite different, Alan and I have been close friends for 5 years. We have a lot to talk. We often play basketball together after school and go for a picnic on weekends. It's always a pleasure to be with him.
 Li Hong	I spend my free time mostly with people from western countries. When I'm with them, I really get to know what they're like and how easy they are to get along with. They help me to improve my English quickly.
 Lisa	I often make some good friends at the gym I go to. People there are very friendly. Talking to them as I take exercise is a good way for us to get to know each other.
 Peter	I can make more friends on the Internet because it keeps me in touch with the whole world. I can get worldwide stories from my friends all over the world.

16. Why can Li Hong improve her English so soon?
- A. Because she does more homework.
 - B. Because she makes some foreign friends.
 - C. Because she travels to other countries.
 - D. Because she likes reading English stories.

In the future, we might not just drive or take trains to get around. Smart people are making a new way to travel: flying cars. These cars can drive on the road like usual cars, but they can also fly in the sky like planes.

“Wow, can you imagine flying over traffic jams?” asks Tom.

“Sure, Tom!” answers Sarah. “It would save us so much time.” Flying cars can help deal with(处理) some big travel problems. One is traffic jams. With flying cars, people can fly over them and save time. Another problem is pollution. Many flying cars are being made as electric cars, so...

“I heard these electric(电) flying cars won’t pollute the air.” Jack puts a word in.

Safety(安全) is very important for new ways to travel. Engineers are using cool technology to make flying cars safe. They put safety nets into them, like parachutes and good guided systems(导航系统) to help.

“Dad, are flying cars safe?” little Timmy asks.

“Yes, Timmy.” his dad reassures him. “Engineers are working hard to make them as safe as possible.”

Flying cars are still being tested, but some companies have tried them out. It might take a few years, but soon we might see flying cars in our everyday life. The idea of flying cars is not just a dream any more—it’s getting real.

“I can’t wait for the day we can just fly to work.” says Lisa, excitedly.

“Me neither.” agrees Mike. “It’s going to change the way we live and travel.”

23. What problems can flying cars help to deal with?
- ①Traffic jams. ②Air pollution. ③Electrical waste. ④Climate warming.
- A. ①② B. ③④ C. ①③ D. ②④

 - B. Makes him a bit angry.
 - C. Makes him feel proud.
 - D. Makes him feel sorry.
26. What can be the best title of the passage?
- A. The History of Transportation.
 - B. The Problems of Modern Traffic.
 - C. The Future Transportation—Flying Cars.
 - D. A Great Way of Life—Flying Traveling.

D

Once upon a time in a small town, there was a young boy named Tim who always felt bored after school. His afternoons were filled with nothing but the same old routine(常规事), and he longed for something exciting.

One day, as Tim was walking home from school, he noticed a group of his classmates playing baseball in a nearby park. They were passing the ball loudly and happily. Tim felt a pang of pity for himself, as he had never been part of such an enjoyable activity.

“What’s the matter, Tim?” asked his friend, Sarah, noticing his unhappy feeling. Tim answered, “I wish I could join them, but I’ve never played baseball before, and I’m afraid I’ll be bad at it.”

Sarah, being a confident(自信的) and encouraging classmate, said, “That’s no problem at all! We can learn together.” After that, she explained that there was a volleyball game later. They could practise passing the ball for that.

Feeling hopeful, Tim agreed to join Sarah for some practice. They went to the school’s volleyball court, and she taught him how to pass the ball with confidence. Tim found the activity to be both relaxing and enjoyable, and he began to score points in their friendly matches.

As the days went by, Tim’s skills improved, and he became less bored after school. He started to look forward to the chance to play with his classmates. He went from being a boy who found everything boring to one who was excited about after-school activities.

One day, during a close and exciting game, Tim made a fantastic play that helped his team win. His classmates cheered loudly, and he felt pleased and proud of himself. He realized that trying new things and stepping out of his comfort zone(区) could be exciting and rewarding(值得的).

From that day on, Tim’s life was far from boring. He enjoyed the journey of learning new sports and making new friends. He learned that sometimes, all it takes is a choice to change one’s life for the better. And so, Tim’s after-school hours became a time of enjoyment, growth, and the magic of discovering new interests.

27. What did Tim feel during his after-school hours before he started playing sports?
A. Excited. B. Bored. C. Confident. D. Relaxed.
28. Which sport did Tim's classmates invite him to play at first?
A. Baseball. B. Volleyball. C. Soccer. D. Tennis.
29. How did Sarah help Tim not be afraid of playing sports?
A. By watching matches with him. B. By reading sports rules to him.
C. By offering to practice with him. D. By telling stories about sports heroes.
30. What lesson did Tim learn from his experience with after-school activities?
A. He should never stay inside the house.
B. Trying new things could be more difficult.
C. Stepping out of comfort zone was rewarding.
D. He should only play sports he is good at.
